■ Open House well attended

Anadarko progressing on exploration, development

Anadarko Canada Corporation held open houses in Elk Point and Eastbourne last week to give area residents a progress report on their Kehewin - Moose Hills exploration and drilling projects.

With seismic programs in both areas now complete, Anadarko is now moving along into phases two to four of their project. Exploration drilling is underway in the Kehewin area, and in the Moose Hills area, where a number of exploration wells have already been drilled, they are moving into the developmental well stage.

Maps showing wells

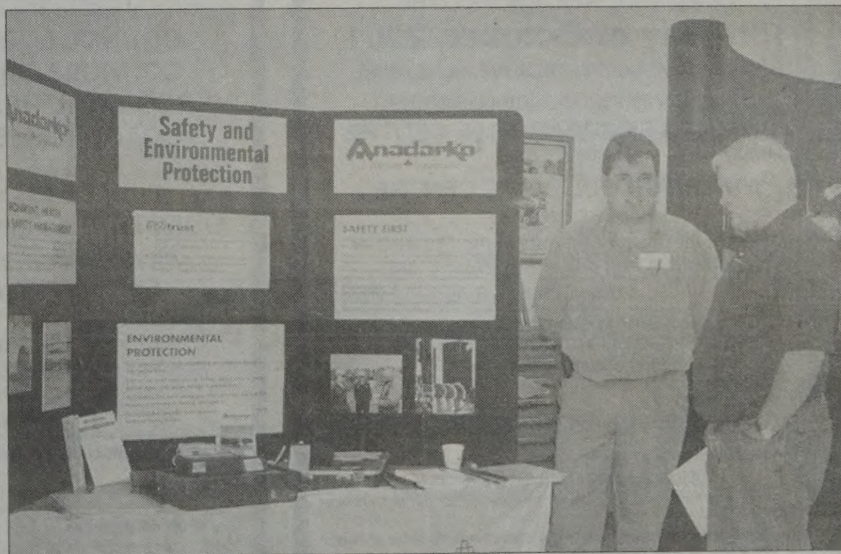

drilled to date and planned future well sites were part of the open house display, as was a map showing areas of potential oil reservoirs as determined by the seismic exploration.

Christina Johnson, staff geologist dealing with unconventional reservoirs, explained that the latter map "gives an idea of how things were" in the era when materials that would later become oil deposits were laid down. "Southeast of Elk Point there were huge hills, and more to the northwest. In between there were a lot of river systems and water, with deposits forming in different formations over time." Some of these ancient river beds, which were probably much like the river deltas of today, resulted in the Colony channels which are now being accessed, and which do not lie as deep as some of the reservoirs accessed by earlier drilling. "Hopefully over the next four or five years, we will have all the channels outlined. It's pretty exciting."

Core samples taken from both the 450 meter and 600 meter depths of a well drilled recently a mile east of Elk Point show the presence of oil, and

Operation Impact slated for October 6

On Saturday, October 6, 2001 the Elk Point RCMP Detachment will participate in the 11th annual Operation Impact. This is a nationwide traffic program aimed at raising awareness of the many issues affecting public safety on Canadian roadways. The RCMP, along with other police services from across the country, are committed to the goal of making Canadian roads safe for the public to use. Operation Impact is a program designed to demonstrate this commitment in a proactive way, in part by removing high risk drivers from our roads.

This year, the program will emphasize three main concerns relating to public safety on Canadian roadways. These include impaired driving, seatbelt safety and stop sign violations. Statistics show that every year in Canada nearly 3000 people are killed in traffic crashes. Alcohol is a factor in approximately one third of these fatalities. Four out of every ten vehicle occupants killed in crashes are not wearing seatbelts, and one in every four fatalities occurs in crashes related to intersections and stop sign violations. Operation Impact will be used as a means of raising awareness of these alarming statistics.

On October 6, the Elk Point RCMP's involvement in this program will also concentrate on these three problems. There will be strict traffic enforcement programs throughout this police jurisdiction with a zero tolerance policy in effect. Please help in making this endeavor a worthwhile and successful one.

Anadarko Open House

indicate that there are two accessible target zones. Geologist Corrine Richmond said "we don't usually take core samples, but we did on this well to find out more about the zone. We usually just run well logs, and sample as we go through. The logs tell what is in the zone and if there is a potential for an oil reservoir."

Good results on some of the exploration wells have started a flurry of activity in the area, with twelve more development wells to be drilled in the near future. Twenty-six additional exploration wells are planned across the Kehewin and Moose Hills areas, but "that number is always changing," Ms Richmond noted.

The open house displays, which in Elk Point were visited by several high school classes in addition to the general public, also offered information about heavy oil drilling and completion procedures, from pre-construction site assessment to lease construction. Production and ongoing operation were included in additional displays, with an emphasis placed on environmental protection. Troy Geertsen, Anadarko's safety and compliance coordinator, said "we basically try to do the right thing" to alleviate problems with soil, water, air and noise pollution. Site inspections, compliance monitoring and emergency planning all go into ensuring that Anadarko will be "good neighbors" in the community.

Elk Point is Anadarko's largest field office, with 50 employees. Anadarko contributes to the community in many ways, including a donation of $10,000 to STARS Air Ambulance, contribution to the upgrading and maintenance of several roads in the oil patch, involvement as volunteers in the community, and donations to local charities.

from the FCSS DESK

Monday, October 8 is Thanksgiving Day

By Deanna Easthope
FCSS Director

Don't forget: Monday, October 8, 2001 is Canadian Thanksgiving Day. It is a special time for family and friends to gather together and express our gratitude.

When you think about it, we should live in thanksgiving daily. Robert Louis Stevenson wrote: "The man who forgets to be thankful has fallen asleep in life." Unfortunately, because the beauties of life are so abundant, sometimes we take them for granted. The more often we see the things around us - even the beautiful and wonderful things - the more they become invisible to us. That is why we often take for granted the beauty of this world: the flowers, the trees, the birds, the clouds - even those we love. Because we see things so often, we see them less and less.

Those who live in thanksgiving daily, however, have a way of opening their eyes and seeing the wonders and beauties of this world as though seeing them for the first time. You can do it! Look around you. Notice the people you care about. Notice the fragrance of the flowers and the song of the birds. Notice and give thanks for the blue of the sky, the color of the leaves, and the white of the clouds. Enjoy every sight, every smell, every taste, every sound.

When we open our eyes and give thanks for the bountiful beauty of this life, we live in thanksgiving daily. Let go of the negative emotions. Anger, resentment and bitterness can stunt us. Forgive others who have offended you. Don't waste another moment feeling self-pity.

We can live in thanksgiving daily by opening our arms to those around us. When was the last time you told someone you love how much they mean to you? When was the last time you unselfishly reached out to help another in need? Every time we cheer another's heart, every time we ease another's burden, every time we lift a weary hand, we show our gratitude to that God to whom we owe all that we have and all that we are.

Did you know I am very thankful to be living in Elk Point? I see so many people who are examples of what I have been talking about. They are living their lives in thanksgiving daily. Thank you for being who you are. You have helped me to be thankful I am living in Elk Point.

Yes, I know President Bush has declared a war on terrorism. It is for the purpose of protecting our freedom of being who we are and being able to live in a free country. Thus it will be some time before our lives take on some sense of normality. Therefore you may find it difficult to recognize our traditional Thanksgiving Day. At the same time, I am thankful for the examples of people who have freely given service in the aftermath of "America Under Attack." I am thankful for the gift of television and the coverage of this event that I was able to watch and therefore help my understanding. You see, I was young, during the Korean War and World War II. I didn't understand then. But, I felt the fear of my parents. Yes, war is a fearful thing, but somehow, it is you and I as individuals who need to keep looking for what is good about living each day. May each of you find the good in each day and be grateful.

Livelihood, way of life threatened by trail

To the Editor:

Rural landowners' livelihood and way of life is threatened by the Trans-Canada Trail and recreation trails in general. We are the major stakeholders in the development of trails. We are the ones who will have to deal with the problems that will arise from a trail that bisects our pastures and fields, and in some instances will practically go through our back yards. Adjacent landowners do not want people hiking, cycling, snowmobiling, or ATViing through their pastures and fields. The danger of the spread of Foot and Mouth Disease, extreme fire hazard, and liability lawsuits to name a few of our concerns only intensify our determination to keep recreation trails from being developed through agriculture areas.

Our Provincial Government, in support of recreation trails, gave Alberta Trail net over $1.2 million in 2000, to develop the TCT in Alberta. Also, in the year 2000 the Minister of Community Development commissioned a $40,000 Impact Analysis Study that was totally biased in favor of trails. Something that did come out of that study was a Trail Development Budget estimate on 324 km of trail in South Central Alberta. By their estimate, it will cost over $6.3 million to develop that 324 km of trail and $633,000 per year to maintain it. Who will pay for it? Only a very small portion will come from donations.

I want to encourage the ratepayers in the Counties of Smoky Lake, St. Paul and Bonnyville to get out and vote no, in the upcoming plebiscite on trails. We need to send a strong message not only to our Counties but to the Provincial Government. Along with the Kneehill County survey done by the Cosway Landowners Association, where 75% of ratepayers were surveyed and an astounding 93 per cent of them are against trail development in their County, perhaps we will make it clear to our Governments that recreation trails are not wanted in rural agricultural Alberta. You are the first ones to have the opportunity to vote for or against. Please get out and vote.

Letters to the Editor

Losing trail is avoiding liability

To the Editor:

In response to Ron Belzil's letter, I have to agree that as long as there is a chance of the railway being reconstructed, the right of way should stay intact. Anything that is good for the community is good for us all. Unfortunately the short sighted, one dimensional attitude of some of the businessmen in the communities affected by the rail property, who support trail development, is scary to say the least.

I have been farming in the St. Paul area for 25 years and am a positive thinking, free enterpriser to the core, I wouldn't have lasted in agriculture without that attitude.

From day one it has been the focus of the landowner group to bring facts from the trails that exist. We have statistics from sales tax records of communities that have trails that indicate no increase in financial activity and an actual decrease as a result of trail development. We have a letter from a real estate broker who is neutral on trail development, and in one case, refused to list a farm that was adjacent to a trail, stating that most of his clients were from Europe, or Ontario and were trying to escape from such developments. We have news articles reporting assaults on landowners who, in one case was punched by a snowmobiler who had left the trail and was riding on his lawn. CTV's W5 did an excellent story on the trail carnage in Eastern Canada last winter. They followed snowmobilers that were bar-hopping from town to town. Spoke to the husband of a lady who was killed by a ski-doo while hiking on a trail with her dog.

These are the reasons that the St. Paul Chamber of Commerce had decided to stay neutral on the issue. Despite a lot of pressure from the Riverland Recreational Trail Society and the aforementioned businessmen they realized that the risks outweighed any perceived benefit and that this trail, because of the fact that it will connect two major towns and a city will, most probably, bear no comparison to the Iron Horse Trail.

The fact that both the trail group and the municipal group have declined to sign agreements that would guarantee the adjacent landowners financial security in regard to this development, proves that there are big holes in the insurance coverage that the trail group claims will cover us. We will be "On the Hook" financially, both as landowners and taxpayers.

Losing trail development is not an opportunity missed, but rather a liability avoided.

We would ask that you make the right choice for your community. Vote NO on October 15.

Steve Upham
Spedden

Most trail issues are resolvable

To the Editor:

While following the progress of the various municipalities to convert the abandoned rail line to a multi use recreational trail open to all, I have read or listened to some of the concerns voiced by people opposed to the development of this trail. Most of these issues appear to be resolvable especially if open discussion continues between potential trail users, municipalities and those adjacent landowners who see the development of a trail as a potential threat to their property.

Some landowners who live adjacent to the old rail line want assurances that an inclusive insurance policy covers all potential property damage and public liability concerns. Unfortunately complete insurance of this type does not exist. Events over the past few weeks have shown that there are no guarantees in life. In the old days, no coverage existed for the people who made their living off the land. Today, no one in any business can obtain future compensation for any and all eventualities. Instead, we try to resolve potential problems locally by talking to each other, gathering accurate information and eventually coming up with an agreed upon solution. Sometimes this takes too long for some people, but the process works!

There are no assurances for the people dedicated to securing the old rail corridor and eventually developing, maintaining and policing what may turn out to be one of the best managed trail system in Canada. Mishaps and infractions will occur. Future problems can be solved by regular local communication that results in effective local solutions being put in place. This type of "insurance policy" can be done. Support the development of a multi-use trail on the abandoned rail line by voting "Yes" on October 15th.

Trail provides family recreation

To the Editor:

I'm writing about the abandonment of the railway and the proposed public trial system being promoted. I have recently become involved, because of my strong belief in the good, this recreational trail would bring. Last Thanksgiving, we met a high school friend of my husband, and took both our families down the Iron Horse Trail from Elk Point to Heinsburg on quads. The kids had a wonderful time. When kids are riding on quads they never ask, "Are we there yet?" The scenery was spectacular. Blue skies, yellow and orange leaves, red rose hips, and fallen leaves swirling behind the quads like a wake behind a boat. We had a wiener roast at the Historic Railway Park and showed the kids the restored caboose and water tower. It was a great family outing, the kids sang and smiled the whole way. They've been asking all year, when we can do it again, so last weekend we did.

This time, we quadded down on Saturday, stayed at Else's Country Bed and Breakfast and came back on Sunday. The kids were ecstatic-you know how kids love a sleepover! The beds were incredibly comfortable and the breakfast was fantastic. Else even served a few Danish specialties. I picked up some new recipe ideas! My children saw Trumpeter swans and Canada geese, beavers, whitetail deer, and many small animals along the way. This year we didn't have to open and close gates on the trail, because the Society and volunteer groups have installed Texas gates. The trail was clean and well kept. We only saw two items of trash the whole way and took the opportunity of teaching our kids stewardship of the trail by picking up and disposing of the trash correctly. I encourage all families to vote Yes for public trails on Oct. 15. The glint in your children's eyes will be worth it.

Three candidates vie for position of Mayor of Elk Point

Elk Point will have a new mayor at the helm after the October 15 election. Here, in alphabetical order, are your candidates for that esteemed position of head of the community's municipal government.

CAPJACK-HUGO, Bernice

Bernice Capjack-Hugo is a lifelong resident of Elk Point, and has spent the past 32 years teaching at Elk Point Elementary School, a career to which she is still committed. Ms Capjack-Hugo is also a consultant at the school.

Community involvement over the years has included serving on the executives of the curling club, church and Ukrainian Dance Club, as well as being involved in the Lioness Club and drama group. She has coached both minor and ladies ball, and has helped to organize numerous events. Presently, Ms Capjack-Hugo sits on the St. Paul and District Co-op Board of Directors as the Elk Point representative.

Asked why she decided to run for Elk Point's top political office, Ms Capjack-Hugo said "I always wanted to do this. It's a challenge I wanted to accept. I have no beefs with what has been done, I'm just interested in keeping Elk Point the good kind of community it has always been."

As mayor, Ms Capjack-Hugo would want to develop an economic development plan to seek new industries, and continue with the plans of revitalizing and beautifying our town. She feels it is essential to complete all programs already started, to ensure that responsible decisions are made and to work with the business community on a team basis for the betterment of the town.

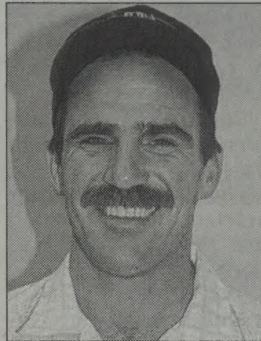

Open-minded, responsible and willing to learn, Ms Capjack-Hugo believes "a change can help. I want to make our community safer, caring and attractive -- one of the best in Alberta.

Lyle Frisby was born in Elk Point in 1963, returning to the area in 1982, and living in town for the past 14 years. He is involved with the volunteer fire department, the Lions Club, Golf Club, Elk Point Oilmen's Association, Elk Point Emergency Services and Citizens On Patrol Society.

Very active in these organizations, Frisby feels he "can do a lot for the town," and has received "a lot of support" from business people and town residents for his bid for Mayor.

Frisby feels it is necessary to promote establishment of new businesses, and to "try to get more people to come to town." He sees a need to "get more things for our children. A lot of people have left because there was not enough to keep their kids busy." He also feels that local clubs and organizations should be promoted to get more people involved.

Promotion of small business and establishment of a suitable landing pad for STARS air ambulance are also in Frisby's. He supports the recreational trail and "would like to see it go through. I've seen some bad accidents in the ditches, and feel if these people had someplace decent to use, 99% will use it. It would also bring more people to the community."

Environmental concerns also must be addressed. "I want more research into contaminated areas and how they can be cleaned up."

Frisby feels he can bring a "positive change" to Elk Point, "from a can't-do to a can-do community."

HENDRICKSON, Mae

Mae Hendrickson has three terms on Elk Point Town Council to her credit, and has been part of most of Council's various decision-making committees during that time. Semi-retired, she has ample time to devote to the position of mayor. Her community involvement includes being a part of the Elk Point Citizens on Patrol Society and a member of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Mrs. Hendrickson said a "lot of people have been pushing me" to run for mayor, and feels that having been on Council, she is "very aware of what's going on in Elk Point. I feel everyone should be on Council before they run for mayor."

"I want to see progress for the town, however we can find that will help," Mrs. Hendrickson said. "It's very important, and would encourage more people to come and live here. A swimming pool, for example, "would be very expensive, but it would be well utilized." She would also like "to see young people entertained. We need them here in Elk Point to be part of our community's future, and we need them to be knowledgeable."

She would like to see the community "kept safe for everyone, young to old. There are a lot of frightened people out there."

Mrs. Hendrickson's years of experience on Council are what she offers to October 15 voters. "I think that's a big factor, and another way to help the community better itself. I would do my utmost to help the community in any way possible."

A notice to our commercial customers.

In St. Paul and its surrounding areas over the coming weeks, ATCO Electric will be replacing some commercial meters with our new Automatic Meter Reading (AMR) technology. You don't have to be present if your meter is scheduled to change and your power will be off for less than a minute.

In October, our service personnel will be changing some commercial meters in the following communities: Elk Point, Lindbergh, Heinsburgh, Riverview, St. Paul, Spedden, the Frog Lake First Nation, the Fishing Lake Metis Settlement, the Saddle Lake First Nation and the Whitefish Lake First Nation. The program will continue throughout the month of October.

AMR meters send information to us automatically - over the power lines. Among the benefits to you is a virtual end to estimated bills and, once the system is fully installed, we'll be able to pinpoint outages faster. AMR also helps us to keep our costs down, which in the long term helps keep our rates low. Best of all, there's no additional cost to you.

If your business is in the above areas and you have questions about AMR, please phone our customer assistance centre at 1-800-668-2248.

Meet your Town Council candidates

In the October 15 municipal election, Town voters will choose four of the following five candidates to represent them for a three year term. Your candidates are, in alphabetical order:

JASINSKY, Dennis
(Incumbent)

Dennis Jasinsky has lived in the Elk Point area since 1976, and in town for the past four years. He and his wife have operated a business here for one and a half years.

Jasinsky has been on Town Council for one full term, serving on the library board, airport commission, subdivision appeal board, safety and environment committee and as Town representative to the Chamber of Commerce. In the past, he has been involved with Scouting and the Elk Point Gun

Club, taught hunter education in the school system and is presently teaching a firearms safety course.

Seeking a second term on Council, Jasinsky hopes to see issues resolved that started this year which are "like a job half done, so far."

Ongoing issues include waste management. "We still don't have a dump, and the power of expropriation may have to be used to get the land if there is no other alternative."

The industrial park road "will have to be looked at," and annexation is "still not through." He also feels the Town must be "vigilant about the hospital. The next time there are budget cuts, we could lose it. We've lost enough out of town already, and if we lose the hospital, the town will slowly disintegrate."

One thing people should do this election, Jasinsky says, "is vote. It's their democratic right."

JOICE, Manon

Manon Joyce was born and raised in Cornwall, Ontario, and has lived in Elk Point for five years. She is married and a mother of one.

A onetime small business owner and active Chamber of Commerce member, Ms Joyce received the Chamber's Business of the Year award in 1999. She has served as treasurer of the library board, and is currently the Sunday School superintendent for the Christian Community Church and involved with Meals on Wheels.

Ms Joyce has "been thinking about the position" of councillor since she was self-employed in the community. "I feel I can offer a fresh perspective in the area of economic development and social development for the town of Elk Point. She has already been involved in developing a "strong economic development plan."

She is also concerned with the quality of life for citizens. "It's important to recognize that we have a wonderful town with a solid foundation. Many amenities are in place, and now it is time to address the needs of our youth and our businesses. We have had a very conscientious TRAIL SUPPORTERS HAVE THE BACKING of politicians and influential business owners. Riverland Recreational Trail Society can afford expensive mail-out propaganda. The following is in response to their latest campaign.

ANSWERS TO COMMON QUESTIONS REGARDING THE CORRIDOR TRAIL PROJECT

What is the local benefit? There is no solid proof that this trail will have either great social or great economic benefits for our area. RRTS says that it will raise the "quality of our lives". This project may raise the quality of the lives of its few local users, but what about the rest of us? Will it keep our families together or strengthen our family bonds? That would raise the quality of our lives. Will it help our children succeed in their endeavors? That would certainly raise the quality of their lives. Will it help us to eat more healthily, or give up smoking, or have annual medical check-ups? How will this trail raise the quality of our lives?

What about safety? Accidents do happen on trails. The Snowmobile Trail Officer Patrol (STOP) in Ontario officially lists seven snowmobiler fatalities on Ontario public trails during a two month period in 1999 (1/16/99 - 3/14/99) and five fatalities on Ontario public trails during a four month period in 2000 (1/03/99 - 02/22/00). Will snowmobilers be better or safer operators in Alberta?

How may speed be controlled? The Alberta Snowmobile Assoc. has an 80km/hr speed restriction. Yet we all know that these machines are made to well exceed 100km/hr. How can hikers, walkers, and horse riders co-exist on a trail (in winter) with a group of snowmobiles flying by at 80km/hr? RRTS says speed limits may be enforceable, but neglect to say by whom.

How will noise be controlled? RRTS says "noisy engines will not be accepted on ... public trails." What local pedestrian or landowner will be successful in stopping a noisy snowmobile going 80km/hr? Most people consider a normally operating snowmobile or quad noisy.

Who will pay for this trail? RRTS says taxpayers will not carry the burden of trail maintenance. Is this to mean that if our local governments control these trails, pay employees to spray weeds and stop a brush fire started by a quad or a careless smoker, taxpayers will not carry the burden?

Are community ties a priority? RRTS says these trails are "extremely important especially for our rural future" and that "trails promote inter-community relationships." Most of us have cars or trucks in which we may drive our entire family to share in community or inter-community events, and have been doing so long before the public trail idea. A trail user's time might be more wisely spent coaching local hockey teams or volunteering at their local school or library - these things seem "extremely important especially for our rural future!"

How will the trails be policed? Organized trail users, RRTS says, are responsible enough to police themselves. What about random trail users? For them, the trail may be an open invitation to speed, litter, vandalize or trespass. After all, who will punish them? A passer-by walking a dog? A more responsible organized trail user riding his or her quad? Many people who know right from wrong may be fearful of approaching a trail user (or group of trail users) to reprimand them. The "legal enforcement" alluded to by RRTS sounds expensive - who will foot the bill for that?

What about adjacent landowner liability? Sure there is some coverage which proponents say is adequate to protect landowners in the event of a trail-user/landowner lawsuit, but who will protect landowners when a trespassing trail-user falls through the ice and drowns in an adjacent landowner's dugout?

With an optimistic eye, RRTS states that "the fearful stories (of adjacent landowners) circulating in recent weeks are not the reality of the residents near the Iron Horse Trail". That optimistic eye makes them blatant liars in the face of truth. How can they say these "fears" of rural landowners are not reality when IN THEIR OWN SURVEY they state that 1 landowner out of 18 replied that a "fence had been cut" and that a "gate had been left open". 1 out of 18 is 5%. Further, 7 out of 18 surveys stated that cars and trucks use the trail designed for pedestrians and ATVs. 7 out of 18 is almost 40% of their survey responders. In actual fact, there are in excess of 30 landowners living on farms and acreages beside the Iron Horse Trail, not 22 as RRTS states. Were their respondents hand picked; they made up less than 60% of the total of adjacent landowners along that trail.

With figures like these, how dare RRTS say that the concerns of the adjacent landowners are not reality; they are very much reality - and not far from our own backyard. How dare RRTS lie to us when the facts are staring them in the face. Talk about walking around with blinders on.

If you have any doubts or concerns regarding the public trail issue, please vote responsibly

RILEY, Kathy

Originally from England, Kathy Riley has lived in Canada since 1974 and in Elk Point since March of this year. A banker for many years, she came into the travel industry as a troubleshooter.

"Marketing is what I do best. I feel I can give some input, and I have a lot of ideas I can throw forward. Also, I'm a worker and am willing to put in the time."

Although "still finding my bases" in Elk Point, Ms Riley has previously done considerable volunteer work with hospitals, seniors and underprivileged children.

"I like Elk Point. It's very clean and friendly.

But it needs hospitality, and that covers every business. That's where the money comes from." Also, Ms Riley sees a need for "something for the children. There isn't enough. There are a lot of young people here, and that's our future. They'll up and leave if there isn't something here for them. People want the best for their children. There are facilities here and groups which could cooperate, but it would need volunteers. This is a very young town, and let's keep these young people here and look out for them."

Ms Riley also wants to "Make sure the seniors' life is easier."

"This is what I'd like to see in Elk Point, and I'm prepared to put my time in to do it."

TUNG, Parrish

Parrish Tung has lived in Elk Point for three years, after 22 years in Heinsburg. A teacher for 25 years, he is married with a four-year-old son.

A sports enthusiast, Tung has coached sports, looked after Lakeland Ball Park and served on the Alberta Sports Council, currently chairs the volleyball officials in the zone and coaches minor soccer, as well as participating in curling. "I always believe in working for the community I live in, and Elk Point is my town now. I fully intend to live and die here and I want to do something for Elk Point and for myself."

Tung sees a need to "resurrect recreational programs for young adults and children. The FCSS should take a more active role in summer programs. My aim would be to make the town comfortable and worthwhile to make a home in."

As a councillor, Tung would "base all decisions on a commonsense approach and ask myself, 'can I/my family/our local businesses live with it?'" He advocates a "balanced approach, so new businesses and new families want to come here and want to stay."

A "negotiator at heart," Tung says "there always will be issues, and not everyone will applaud what I do, but we have to work together." Familiar with working with grants, he feels he could help the Town access additional funding.

VOGEL, Dwayne

Dwayne Vogel and his wife were both born and raised in Elk Point, and after selling the business they owned in Lethbridge, decided they wanted to return home and raise their own family here.

Involved with the Ukrainian dance, Scouts and 4-H as a youth, he is currently part of Elk Point's Canada Day Committee and is looking forward to more community involvement as his young family grows.

"I see an opportunity for positive change in Elk Point. That, I feel, comes from living in another community, and then returning here. There is more available that we need to reach out and grab."

Vogel feels an emphasis should be placed on economic development and "building a better business community in Elk Point, for Elk Point. If we get the business community active, there will be more businesses doing business." Also, when more families come to Elk Point because of an increased number of businesses, "we will need more family recreational venues. Other communities have this stuff, why don't we?" He predicts "our little town will grow."

Vogel says the new council should "address the needs first, and then the wants. We're not going to get a five-screen theatre as a priority."

He feels he could "bring a positive spin onto Town Council, with fresh ideas" and would be "dedicated toward the future of the town residents."

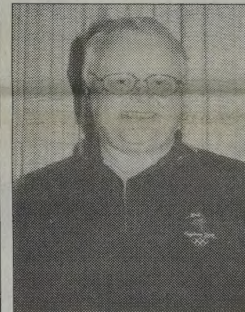

Meet all the Mayor and Town Council candidates in person at Wednesday night's forum, 7:30 p.m. at the Elk Point Seniors Recreation Centre.

Seven contest County Council seats in Divisions 1 and 2

Johnny Lypow
Division 1

Q: Why have you decided to run for county council?

A: I enjoy dealing with the public and working with them.

Q: What are the issues in your division?

A: Issues in the division change from week to week and month to month. I'm running on the campaign of being the voice of Division 1 and it would be my job to listen to the ratepayers concerns and bring them to the council table. We have a unique division with a lot of agriculture and a lot of oil industry and the issues change.

Q: Should the public vote be the final answer to the trail issue?

A: People have to have a say and I will abide by the wishes of the people.

Q: Would a partnership with the Town of St. Paul help with economic development in the county?

A: There's always room for improvement and chances to bring new industry to the area.

Q: Name two things to showcase in the county during the 2002 provincial Agriculture Service Board tour.

A: There are a lot of things in our area like game farms with buffalo and elk. They're always talking about diversification and we have things like feedlots and industry and those things have to go hand in hand.

George Sanders
Division 1

Q: Why have you decided to run for county council?

A: I've been approached by many people to run and I have the time. I've also been involved in many government organizations, but in the background and I think some of that knowledge could be good on council.

Interviews by Joseline Gionet St. Paul Journal

Q: What are the issues in your division?

A: From talking to people it's roads. We have an oil industry here that's just in it's infancy and the roads need to be upgraded to deal with that traffic. If the budget can handle it then I think we need to do what we can to improve the roads in the area.

Q: Should the public vote be the final answer to the trail issue?

A: It should be. It's the voice of the people and it's better for them to decide rather than just a few people. I would support whatever decision was made.

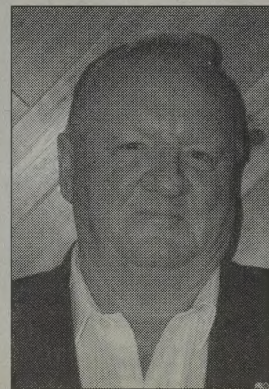

Q: Would a partnership with the Town of St. Paul help with economic development in the county?

A: Definitely as far as making things better and more viable. It goes hand in hand and you have to work with everyone whether they live in the county, St. Paul or in Elk Point. I would love to see people who have crafts and do things like that have a big trade show in late November where they could sell their things. We need agri-tourism and value added industry as well.

Q: Name two things to showcase in the county during the 2002 provincial Agriculture Service Board tour.

A: The Iron Horse Trail and the parks and beautiful tourist areas in this part of the county. There are a lot of things to showcase in this county.

Allen Young
Division 1

Q: Why have you decided to run for county council?

A: I enjoy it and somebody has to do it for this area of the county.

Q: What are the issues in your division?

A: Roads and some weed problems but mainly roads. Since we're going to get rid of secondary roads by the end of the year it will give us a chance to focus on other things.

Q: Should the public vote be the final answer to the trail issue?

A: Once the public vote goes ahead we're going to have to put a trail on it. I think the county is going to vote yes.

Q: Would a partnership with the Town of St. Paul help with economic development in the county?

A: It won't hurt. We have to look at doing something or when this oil industry is gone we'll be in trouble if we don't.

Q: Name two things to showcase in the county during the 2002 provincial Agriculture Service Board tour.

A: The parks in the area and the Iron Horse Trail. We have a lot of things that nobody knows about out here, just basically showcase the county.

Division 2

Q: Why have you decided to run for county council?

A: Just to get better representation for the division and to give the tax payers a better idea of what's happening in the county.

Q: What are the issues in your division?

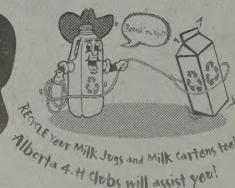

A: Some of the roads are pretty ratty and there are a lot of questions about local oil industry hiring more people from out of the area than here.

Q: Should the public vote be the final answer to the trail issue?

A: Yes, it's really up to the public to make the decision rather than just one councillor. It would definitely be the final answer to the issue.

Q: Would a partnership with the Town of St. Paul help with economic development in the county?

A: I would like to see a little more county presence in the Elk Point area either with a shop or something. They've stayed mostly in the St. Paul area.

Q: Name two things to showcase in the county during the 2002 provincial Agriculture Service Board tour.

A: Our diversified farming for sure and also the seed cleaning plant.

Tom Kurek
Division 2

Q: Why have you decided to run for county council?

A: After 19 years of working for the county, I have a good insight into how things work and I think I can help.

Q: What are the issues in your division?

A: The trail issue is the main thing, but issues are always changing and you just have to deal with them as they come up.

Q: Should the public vote be the final answer to the trail issue?

A: If the vote was negative it wouldn't be the final answer. Regardless of the vote people are still going to use it and it might as well be turned into a regulated trail rather than an unregulated one.

Q: Would a partnership with the Town of St. Paul help with economic development in the county?

A: I wish there would be a partnership.

Q: Name two things to showcase in the county during the 2002 provincial Agriculture Service Board tour.

A: Some of the fishing farms in the area and some of the alpaca farms in the area. Basically just showing the diversity of our agriculture in this county.

Remi Tremblay
Division 2

Q: Why have you decided to run for county council?

A: I've always had an interest in politics and I'm finally at the stage in my life that I have the time. I think I can help out.

Q: What are the issues in your division?

A: It's a variety of things from no real issues to roads, especially in the southeast section of the division.

Q: Should the public vote be the final answer to the trail issue?

A: I believe so. It's the democratic way of doing things and if you're going to put it to a ballot question then you have to live with it.

Q: Would a partnership with the Town of St. Paul help with economic development in the county?

A: It possibly could but I would have to look into it more.

Q: Name two things to showcase in the county during the 2002 provincial Agriculture Service Board tour.

A: The diversification in the county should be showcased. We have everything from buffalo to elk.

Dreaming impossible dreams

By Doug Bassett
Review Sports

"Live from Toronto, it's Hockey Night in Canada. From the face-off, it's Sundin with the puck, he passes it over to Bassett. Bassett, down the wing, crosses the blue line, winds up, he shoots, he scores!"

Hello, Mr. Bassett, it's time to wake up. Oh, yeah, right, sometimes I still dream about it. OK, I admit it, but I'm not alone. Like lots of other hockey dads, my dream was to have my son play in the NHL. (After all he was the most talented prospect eve in this town, that, of course, is according to his dad.) It was not my son's dream, it was my dream. "To dream the impossible dream..." only one in every 10,000 actually make it to the NHL. One in 10,000. It's a long, long road. Where do the rest end up? Having fun playing beer league. Get over it, Dad, it's not the end of the world.

A lot of times it's better to bite your tongue than to speak, this is probably one of those times. Enough said.

It's time for another Don Cherry story. Like a lot of famous people, Don Cherry has written his autobiography. Well, actually, like a lot of famous people, his publisher paid someone to write an autobiography for him. Reflecting on how a person with such rotten grammar could come to write a book, Cherry said, "Three years ago I couldn't spell author. Now I are one."

Agriculture and Food Week – October 8 to 13

Dear Friends:

During Agriculture and Food Week, we celebrate harvest and the many people who drive Alberta's agriculture and food industry. It's an important time of the year, and one the Alberta government is proud to be associated with.

But really, harvest is a daily event.

Everyday, a whole team of producers, processors, researchers, inspectors, distributors, foodservice operators and retailers is providing safe, premium quality food to Canadians and consumers in over 110 different countries. Together, they represent Alberta's agriculture and food industry - a leading contributor to our provincial economy and Canada's positive trade balance. Canada's second largest and most diverse agricultural economy, Alberta's agriculture and food sector employs over 223,000 people and pumps $27.2 billion into the provincial economy. In addition, they're on a relentless drive to create new world standards for food safety, quality nutrition and environmental stewardship.

This fall, please join us in our celebration of an industry that is truly growing Alberta.

Sincerely,

Recreational Trails: A Tremendous Upside

Recreational Benefits

- ✓ Trails are for everyone to enjoy!! User groups include walkers, cross-country skiers, snowmobilers, joggers, horseback riders and cyclists. Even bird watchers and nature groups would have a new and exciting place to enjoy their hobby!
- ✓ Schools could take science trips right here in our own communities. Other organizations such as Cubs, Girl Guides and Scouts would have easy access to the outdoors while experiencing a piece of our local history. Imagine the Possibilities.
- ✓ We would have a new place to show our community spirit through events such as the annual Terry Fox Run, or even the local RCMP Road Races.

Your Safety Is Important

- ✓ This is the opportunity of a lifetime. Finally, people would have a designated place to go to enjoy their favorite pastime in a beautifully serene setting away from our roads and highways.
- ✓ The trail would be insured against mishaps that may occur on the trail itself. This protection even extends to the adjacent landowner in case an accident occurs on adjacent private lands. An effort is being made to protect everyone involved in the landscape of this trail.
- ✓ Regulations controlling speed, hours of use, and proper signage will be enforced. Roadway approaches will be clearly signed, and speed controllers such as Texas Gates and speed bumps will be utilized.
- ✓ A controlled system enables people who care for your family's safety to take the necessary steps to ensure that you enjoy family recreation in the safest environment possible. In reality, doesn't this proposal sound better than having no control at all?

Economic Spin-Off Will Benefit Local Business

- ✓ Valuable tourism dollars will stay in our community. People will spend their money in our very own convenience stores, gas stations, motels and restaurants.
- ✓ This increased spending goes a long way in helping to keep our small towns alive and prospering! Not only will we bolster economies, but also save valuable pieces of our history in the process.
- ✓ Local contractors are performing signage and maintenance activities. We are seeing this benefit even today!
- ✓ A stronger tourism industry brought forth by increased community support and exposure will help to solidify the agricultural aspect in our communities. Our strengths will complement each other and make all of our communities stronger!

Community Pride and Unity

- ✓ A trail system will join our communities geographically, but also give a strong sense of unity and pride to the Lakeland.
- ✓ Gives us all another way to showcase, and experience, the diverse beauty of Northeastern Alberta and the small towns that come together to form a rich and proud history.

what's NEWS at the LIBRARY?

Lots of new books for all ages and interests!

By Daphne Schnurer
Librarian

There are lots of new books at the library this week. If you are interested in westerns, we have three new titles that might interest you: The Wolf Strain, by Max Brand, is a collection of three short novels by this celebrated western author. The Dark Land, by Jory Sherman, takes place after the American Civil War. Behold a Red Horse, by Cotton Smith, is about a cattle drive that forces three estranged brothers to work together to save their ranch.

For tractor lovers, we have The World of Tractors: an illustrated history of the ultimate farm machine, by John Carrol. It is full of interesting facts and beautiful pictures of the evolution of the tractor from the first steam tractor to the tractors of today used in competitive tractor pulls.

For teens, we have a new book on Mount Everest. Everest: Reaching the world's highest peak gives lots of interesting facts on what it is like to climb the mountain. It uses real-life examples from those who have managed to conquer the mountain. We also have a great new book on sharks.

■ Faith

There are also a number of new children's books for the younger set. We have a number of new Step Into Reading titles. A new Dr. Seuss book, O the Things You Can Do That Are Good For You teaches children about good nutrition and exercise in a fun way. Let's Count the Raindrops is an illustrated book of poems. Canoe Days, by Gary Paulsen, tells the story of a trip down a river in a canoe.

A new block of large print books has also arrived this week, on loan from Northern Lights. Large print books are for everyone, not just those that need them. The theme this time is romance. Come on in and look at When A Woman Doctor Loves, A Hazard of Hearts, Man Out of Reach or Sleeping Bride. There are lots of other titles to check out too. Another mixed block of large print books is also expected to arrive at any time.

Just a reminder that we are now accepting donations for our Friends' fundraising

Silent Auction. Whatever your talent, we would invite you to share it with us through a donation of your creation, and help keep the library a thriving and vital part of the community.

And don't forget - today at 2 p.m. is the Seniors Tea. Drop by for goodies with a fall flair and great conversation. The kettle is on and you're welcome to join us!

The Lakeland Regional Health Authority, Public Health Program would like to take this opportunity to say

Thank You.

Each person's contribution to our meningococcal clinics held from April - June 2001 helped make our campaign an overwhelming success.

~ Thank You ~

Elk Point United Church marking 75th anniversary

By Joep Langejans
Elk Point United Church

Elk Point United Church is celebrating its 75th Anniversary this year and we have decided to throw a party... and we would like you and your family and friends to come and share this special occasion with us.

Elk Point United Church is proud to be the home of so many families in this area, and on this special occasion, our hopes are that we can bring everyone together for a day of celebration and a time of sharing memories and those stories that are just 'itching' to be told.

The festivities will begin at 11:00 a.m. (note this change of time for this day only), with a special Thanksgiving worship service, including the sacraments of communion and a baptism of six-month-old Ross Hawryluk. A complete turkey dinner and all of the trimmings is slated for 1:00 p.m.

and everyone is welcome to come and partake. From 2:00 to 3:30-ish will be the time of the celebration of our faith, and this will include special music from the Elk Point Community Choir, various soloists, guest speakers, messages from dignitaries, sharing of our history and recognition of those who have traveled from far and wide to come and celebrate this day.

We would ask all of you who plan to attend to search in your picture books and those boxes that contain photographs (especially your marriage pictures) that may be part of the history of Elk Point United Church, to bring them and have them displayed for the day on our "History Board." We will take good care of them and will make sure that they return home safely with you.

There will be a time for socializing and a chance to renew old acquaintances after the program. So... plan to attend and come and share the day with us; we would love to see you. If not... have a blessed Thanksgiving and invite someone whom you haven't seen for a while to share your day... Shalom (Peace).

ST. JUDE

May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world now and forever. Sacred Heart of Jesus pray for us, St. Jude worker of miracles pray for us, St. Jude Helper of the hopeless pray for us. Say nine times for nine days, promise to publish on the 8th or 9th day and our prayers will be answered.

Counties have trail question on election ballot

By Steven Heywood
St. Paul Journal

The Counties of Smoky Lake and St. Paul and the M.D. of Bonnyville are asking voters for a 'yes' or a 'no' on the issue of a trail on abandoned CN Rail land. All three are part of a group of 10 municipalities purchasing the line from CN.

While the ballot is in all three counties, only St. Paul and Bonnyville appear to be getting the brunt of lobbying from these groups for and against a trail.

M.D. of Bonnyville administrator Roy Doonanko says his council has had one delegation from adjacent landowners, and has held a public meeting on the matter in Fort Kent. He adds there was no specific request to put the question on the Oct. 15 election ballot, but says council decided, like the other counties, to ask the electorate.

Darren Pinkoski, editor of the Bonnyville Nouvelle, says he's been getting up to 12 letters a week on the issue.

"The pro trail people are strong," he says. "The people against it are playing catch up."

Pinkoski adds he thinks no matter how the vote turns out, the abandoned land will be a trail in the end.

"Even if it's a no, there will be people later on complaining about ATVs on it and asking for some regulation. At some point, it's going to be a trail."

He adds St. Paul County is getting the brunt of the debate because the two lobbying groups are basically based in that part of the region.

A spokesperson for the County of Smoky Lake says staff there are staying neutral on the trail issue, leaving the eventual answers up to the politicians.
